Medias Branschdag 2020

The Master of Science and Engineering program in Media Technology is one of the data science programmes at KTH. In this diverse programme traditional engineering subjects are mixed with programming, IxD, UX, project management, visualisation, machine learning, signal processing and much more. The different masters available give the students the ability to excel in different fields. Our job fair at KTH campus in Stockholm is a way to celebrate this competence and connect our students with potential employers.

Medias Branschdag is a fantastic opportunity for your company to market yourself to our students. We are positive that you can inspire them in their future career, and that you will be inspired by them as well!
